LIVE TOPICS ABOUT TOWN.

There is one house in Sterling place Brooklyn, that promises some surprises to the first burglar that attempts to enter it. Upon opening the front door the visitor is confronted by a Gatling gun in perfect working order. At the top of the first flight of stairs is a one-pounder, and at least a dozen other pieces of artillery occupy unexpected places throughout the building. Every part of the residence suggests trouble for the unwelcome. The occupant is an inventor of explosives, and he explained to a visitor that he had never counted upon the formidable looking ornaments as of protec-tive value. "The real protection." he ex-plained, "lies in the things unseen."

Wherever there is building going on, and all the outlying sections of at least three of the boroughs ring with the hammer of the carpenter all day long, one may see the bush on a gable end of almost every new frame house that has taken on at least the skeleton of its definite form. As soon as the ridgepole has been set in place upon the rafters some one of the carpenters is sure to tack into place a bush or a branch from a tree. There it remains and withers until the roofers reach it with their shingles. An antiquary relates that the custom is universal among the carpenters of northern Europe and has so respectable a history that it may well be derived from the Druids. It is by nature a luck charm, something to avert the evil that might be built into the fabric of the home. It is explained that if something growing were not put upon the roof tree the family which it shelters would make no growth.

"There," said the grocer, pointing to a slant eyed, blouse covered Chinaman who was departing with two well filled paper bags, "goes one of my best customers.

"It is a mistaken idea that the Chinaman is penurious and that he lives on pracman is penurious and that he lives on practically nothing. As a matter of fact the Chinamen are the first purchasers of celery, watermelon and everything else that is good to eat. The price is apparently no object. The Chinaman eats but one square meal a day, but that meal is of the best in the market.

They were discussing the annoyances of the Fourth. "Well, for once," declared one of the party-a Brooklyn flat dweller-I slept through all the morning racket. You see," she explained, "ever since the spring cleaning began my neighbors have started in early every morning to beat carpets. At first the noise was maddening. I appealed to the Health Board in vain, and finally nature came to the rescue by permitting me to sleep through it all. Once you get so that you can sleep while your neighbors beat carpets, a little thing like the Fourth of July celebration cannot annoy you."

Many have noticed that in the United States Army, as well as in the regiments of the National Guard, the letter "J" is omitted in the designation of the companies, the letters jumping from "I" to The reason is often given as the dislike a man has to being in the "Jay" company, but that is not the case.

The letter "J" was introduced in the English alphabet about 1630. Before that the sound had been represented by the letter "I," which was thus made to do double duty. The same was the case in the written lan guage, and in the last century "1" and "J' were written exactly the same. About 1850, however, the innovation was made of writing "J" with the bottom loop below the line.

The confusion which would have resulted in military records was the reason for not using the letter "J," and the system has never been changed. The same rule applies, perhaps, to the non-use of the letter "J" in lettering the rows of seats in some theaters.

"You wouldn't think that those poor devils had much to fight about," said a man to his companion as they were going through City Hall Park about midnight as the approach of a policeman caused two belligerent bench sleepers to separate."

"Oh, I don't know. A place to sleep, even a park bench, is a pretty good reason to fight," responded the other. "Don't think for a minute that all those fellows are newcomers down here. Some of them take a job once in a while and drop out, but the majority of them are old rounders. They select a choice seat, a kind of orchestra chair, early in the season and hold on to it, here was a Margrave or a Baron named oric that held the most of the land claim to a particular place. One of those there, and he took to the strange young fellows in the scrap was a newcomer and the oldtimer wouldn't stand for losing his bed."

> Many business men and women who live uptown make a practise of walking at least part of the way home through Central Park, but few seem to frequent Riverside Park for a constitutional. It is a trifle out of the way, but the pedestrian therein has the advantage of being allowed to walk on the grass, which is much more restful than tramping on pavements. Between Seventy-second and 125th streets in River-side are numerous long stretches where one may stroll at ease on soft, springy turf, only descending to stony pavements when the bank becomes too steep for comfortable footing.

> Nothing could equal the apologetic attitude of all the salespeople in the shops nowadays. "It's so late in the season, you know," they begin, and add, "Everything has been sold."

This has its effect in disciplining the cuatomer who has dared to postpone purchasing until such a late date. It is in the bonnet shops where the prices have been reduced that this attitude is most impressed on the buyer.

"What in the world did you mark down your prices for then," said a woman in a millinery shop the other day, "if you are going to patronize the women who come here to buy them? We have all bought hats earlier in the season and we are buying these now only because they are cheap." Then the saleswoman was less haughty.

"How many New Yorkers know that there once existed a Bunker Hill in this city?" remarked a man who has made a hobby of studying old New York.

"That name," he continued, "historic now only for its Boston associations, was given to a fort built by the early revolu-tionists. It stood on the top of Bayard's Mount, an eminence situated about where Grand street runs now, east of Center

Market.
"The fort did yeoman service in the strenuous days following the Declaration of Independence, but it was dismantled and torn down a few years later."

The monotonous swearing in of citizens in Special Term, Part II., of the Supreme Court, in the County Court House, was interrupted the other day by an incident that set the court room in a roar. Justice Blanchard was sitting, and Clerk McNierney was putting the usual string of questions to an applicant. When he came to the stereotyped query, "Do you belong to any secret societies?" the prospective citizen an-swered, "Yes." swered, "Yes."
"What society is it?" Justice Blanchard

It needs only a trip to Long Island for a New Yorker to realize how far reaching is the significance of the phrase "Made in Germany." ## TEACHERS ROAM NEW YORK.

SPEND THE DAY HERE AFTER THEIR JERSEY CONVENTION.

Many Hear Lyman Abbott Preach at Co lumbia-City History Club Shows the Points of Interest-Internal War and 'Machine Rule" in the Association.

New York was swarming yesterday with the teachers who had come up from the convention at Asbury Park. There were fully five thousand of them here. Some went to Columbia University to hear Dr. Lyman Abbott preach in the morning, others thronged the museums and still others were conducted to points of interest uptown and downtown by members of the City History Club, who explained and lectured as they went.

The conductor of a Broadway car which took a group of Missouri schoolma'ams downtown will not soon forget the pretty miss who turned toward him as he snapped out a "Step lively!" and retorted: "Young The white cocoons fill the interstices of the man! In our country the conductors have to wait for us. So will you!" The collector of fares subsided on the instant.

The immensity of New York none of them could fully grasp. One young woman the stone wall skirting the park on Fifth who rushed in upon John T. Park and the Brooklyn Bridge, and return at 4 o'clock.

The big gynnasium at Columbia University was well filled with teachers when Dr. Abbott preached in the morning. His subject was "Religion," and he told the teachers that they must get the spirit of religion into their work before they could teach with full effect.

Miss Margaret Haley, who is the business representative of the Chicago Teachers' Federation, issued in the afternoon a long statement about the dispute in the annual business meeting of the National Educational Association on Thursday. She represented a body, she said, that wanted the association to remain within the control and be administered in the interest of the thousands of teachers who contribute its thousands of teachers who contribute its income. She compared the situation to the situation in the Equitable society, where "public opinion demanded that the institution should be administered in the interests of the policyholders instead of in the interest of a clique of officers and directors who have long been fattening on the profits that legitimately belong to the stockholders."

"We want the association to remain mutualized," she said. She said that there was machine rule in the association. She declared that President Harper of the "Standard Oil University" as she referred to the University of Chicago, was the power behind the throne. She concluded her

There has been afoot for several years a powerful, persistent, silent and largely successful conspiracy to make a despotism of our entire public school system. State boards of education have demanded, and in some States have obtained, almost absolute control of the public school system. Local boards of education, themselves appointed and not elected, are made corporations with powers superior to the city government. superior to the city government.
Superintendents generally are demanding, and have frequently been conceded, autocratic powers over school boards, courses of study, selection of text books and the appointment, promotion, transfer and dismissal of teachers, &c., till it is safe to say that there exists to-day in America, with the execution of a few contributed communities. exception of a few enlightened communities, no such thoroughly terrorized and oppressed body of men and women as our public school teachers. The whole policy of school ad-ministration in the United States is centralization, and this is the policy that is now being forced upon the National Educational Association.

ALL BECAUSE OF BAD HONG KEE Celestial Washman, Locked Up, Holds

Jersey Town's Clean Linen. BLOOMFIELD, N. J., July 9 .- Much soiled linen was aired in Bloomfield to-day, and all on account of the misdeeds of Hong Kee, the Celestial washman, who went to New York a few days ago and was caught by the police in a raid.

Hong Kee is a good ironer and has a big trade. He went to New York just of a series to be given every Sunday afterafter most of his patrons had turned over their linen for the week. He had never failed them before, so none thought of making provision against the possible non-delivery of the week's wash on Saturday.

Then there was the Fourth of July holi-day and a series of hot days, all hard on starched goods, and not a few of Hong Kee's customers found themselves wear-ing the last shirt and collar when they went to the laundry last night.

First one and then another shook the door and peered in, but Hong Kee answered not. By 8 o'clock there was an angry rowd around the wash shop, and one in-dignant customer proposed smashing in the door and looting the forbidden city, but Chief of Police Collins warned him that such an offense would lead to the penitentiary.

By 9 o'clock the crowd had dispersed some to chalk up spotted collars and bosor for to-day and others to buy new outfits. If Hong Kee doesn't come back very soon some action will be taken to get the linen he has locked up in his shop.

FINE BABY BORN ON TROLLEY CAR Passengers Are Put Off, Shades Drawn and

Doctor Sent For. Mrs. Gussie Hollender, aged 24, of 1051/2 Eighth street, Manhattan, set out yesterday for an outing in Queens county. On a car of the Grand street and Newtown line she became ill and several women in the conductor put the other passengers off the car, the blinds were drawn and the car was sidetracked.

A hurry call for an ambulance was sent to the Eastern District Hospital, but before the ambulance arrived a large crowd had gathered and four policemen were necessary o handle it. When Dr. Cohen appeared Mrs. Hollender gave birth to a bouncing boy baby. At the request of the woman he removed her and the child to her home in the ambulance.

A CATERPILLAR YEAR.

Central Park Promises to Swarm With the Leaf Eaters if They're Let Alene.

A plague of caterpillars the like of which has not been seen in these parts for many years has descended upon Central Park. The hairy visitors have a habit of dropping down the backs of human necks.

"Ouch! O-o-uch!" cries a young woman as she jumps to her feet from the flirtstion bench and makes frantic contortions endeavoring to reach her starboard quar-

"Don't be alarmed. It's only an infant lepidopter," says the park cop. "The only harm he can do is to tickle."

It is easy now, as it hasn't been often in summer, to find an unoccupied bench under a large tree whose outspreading branches cast a fine cool shade. Many a woman seeing the empty bench will hasten to it and sit down, but she won't stay there long. A caterpillar is sure to find the meshes of a peekaboo waist, and then the trouble begins.

The insects have made the trees unsightly. bark on the trunks and larger branches as thickly as holes in a sieve. There was not room enough on the trees apparently, for the cocoons cover much of the space on avenue and Central Park West. The usual appearance of the stone wall is changed to a white mottled surface. All of the caterpillars have not yet come out. There are enough crawling about already to make much trouble, but it is said that when they are all hatched out by the beginning of August they will have the park very much to themselves, so far as visitors are concerned. They have not as visitors are concerned. They have not as yet done much damage to the foliage, as their growth has not got to the point where they do much eating, but they will unless the spraying gang gets busy and murders them in the egg. They are already beginning to strip the plane trees in Brooklyn.

ARRESTED THE BRIDEGROOM. After the Wedding Policeman Couldn't Collect For the Beer.

Harry Greeman of 56 East Third street was married Saturday night to Sarah Herman in the Great Central Palace, at 96 Clinton street, where there was a dance afterward. About 2 o'clock yesterday morning Capt. O'Connor and Detective Eaton of the Delancev street station, who were passing the hall, heard the shrieks of men and women inside. They found the door locked and forced an entrance.

"Arrest that man," said Special Policeman Hesper, who is on duty at the hall. He pointed to the bridegroom. "What for?" asked the captain.

"He ordered two kegs of beer and would pay for but only one," said Hesper. The bridegroom was put under arrest for this alleged offense, in spite of the frantic appeal of the bride. She and half the weeping and wailing wedding guests followed the party to the station house. Greeman was bailed out and the party went back to the hall, but there were no more festivities. Greeman was arraigned yesterday in the Essex Market police court and most of the guests were spectators.
"What did you have this man arrested for?" asked Magistrate Wahle.

or?" asked Magistrate Wahle.
"Pecause he vouldn't bay for der vedding," replied Hesper.
"You don't want to say beer," said the Magistrate, "because it was after 2 o'clock in the morning. A man like you should never be allowed to wear a badge. The prisoners are discharged. The bride threw her arms around the bridegroom's neck and kissed him and the bridal party went on its way rejoicing.

A CATHEDRAL PICNIC. Children From the East Side Journey to Morningside Heights.

Sixty children, accompanied by Canon William Wier Gillies, vicar of Epiphany chapel in Stanton street, went on a picnic vesterday afternoon to the grounds of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine Morningside Heights. The children were all from the Pro-Cathedral neighborhood on the East Side, and the expedition was the first noon in the summer.

A fund for this purpose was put in Bishop Potter's hands two or three years ago, but not until this summer have the Cathedral grounds been in such a condition as to make them a fit place for the purpose.

The children brought their luncheons vesterday afternoon and were taken to Morningside Heights in trolley cars from the Bowery. They went in bunches of twenty. It was expected yesterday that 300 would go, but the thunderstorm, together with the fact that the outing plan is not yet which the lact that the outing plan is not yet generally understood, kept many away. The little handful that did go had a jolly go-as-you-please time of it romping under the treet, on the grass, until 5 o'clock, when Archdeacon Nelson conducted open air services and made a short address.

This open air 5 o'clock service on Sun-days, when the weather is fit, will during the summer take the place of the regular 4 o'clock service which heretofore on Sun-days has been held in the Cathedral crypt.

NEW CONEY CHURCH DEDICATED. Parish That Once Worshiped in Beer Hall Now Flourishing.

Bishop McDonnell, of Brooklyn dedicated the new Church of the Guardian Angel American Synagogue, 87-93 Rivington street, at Coney Island yesterday morning. He was assisted by his secretary, Mgr. Barrett and the pastor, the Rev. John J. Cullen. The sermon was preached by the Rev. William T. McGuirl, rector of St. Michael's. The parish of the Guardian Angel was established in 1880 by the Rev. James McKiverkin, now chaplain of St. Mary's Hospital. He said his first masses in a building at West Third street and Park place. Of afternoons and evenings this same place was used as a beer garden and concert hall.

Eather Cullen came to the parish in 1893 and found it in debt $10,000. He paid this off and began plans for a new church edifice.

The new building cost $65,000.

PLENTY SWIM.

Mr. McDermott a Little Hard to Pull Out of the River.

A tall man wearing a silk hat and a sack coat walked up and down the pier at the foot of West Nineteenth street yesterday afternoon, stopping women and asking them what time it was. One of the women told Policeman O'Connell about it and he started for the man, who thereupon jumped off the pier into the river. Olaf Boordsen, car went to her aid. At their request the a Norwegian bargeman, went after him in a rowboat and got him. Then the rescued man upset the boat. O'Connell got another boat and got the two. The tall man was sent to Bellevue. He said he was James McDermott, a drummer.
